Because no anesthetic procedure, however small, is without some risk, we recommend a pre-anesthetic blood test to help determine your pet's internal health.

These tests check for abnormalities in your pet's ability to process the anesthetic, fight infection, carry oxygen to the tissues and prevent excessive bleeding. If the results are normal, they give us a "baseline" for your pet that we can use to measure against test results during an illness.

Remember, your pet ages about 7 years for every "human" year, so changes can occur more rapidly in pets than in people.

Our staff will recommend tests based on your pet's age, physical condition, and the procedure to be performed.

The results will be available to us before surgery and, should there be any indication that an abnormality exists, the doctor will contact you before proceeding.

The doctor will extract any teeth that need to be removed. It is often impossible to tell, before the animal is anesthetized and the tartar removed, if extractions will be necessary.

Option to decline Blood Work:

I understand the risks to my pet and choose not to have pre-surgical blood work performed. I take full responsibility and hold harmless Kalona Veterinary Clinic, P.C. and its staff and doctors for any result or condition that may have been determined by the recommended blood work.
